This single-story brick-clad building was erected a decade or two after the church proper to serve as a social hall. It is a connected to the church by a covered walkway on the south.

Historical information

The present church building was erected on the site of a large two-story Victorian frame house built some time before 1920, probably in the 1890s. It was the home of Dr. John Staige Davis, Professor of Pathology at UVA, and his family until the early 1950s. It was demolished in 1952 or '53.

The house probably was built for the Davis family.
