

Charlottesville Area Transit Bus Posters

Fry's Spring Service Station:

Fill 'Er Up! Fry's Spring Service Station operated between 1931 and 2009. The building is Colonial/Spanish Revival with Jeffersonian details.

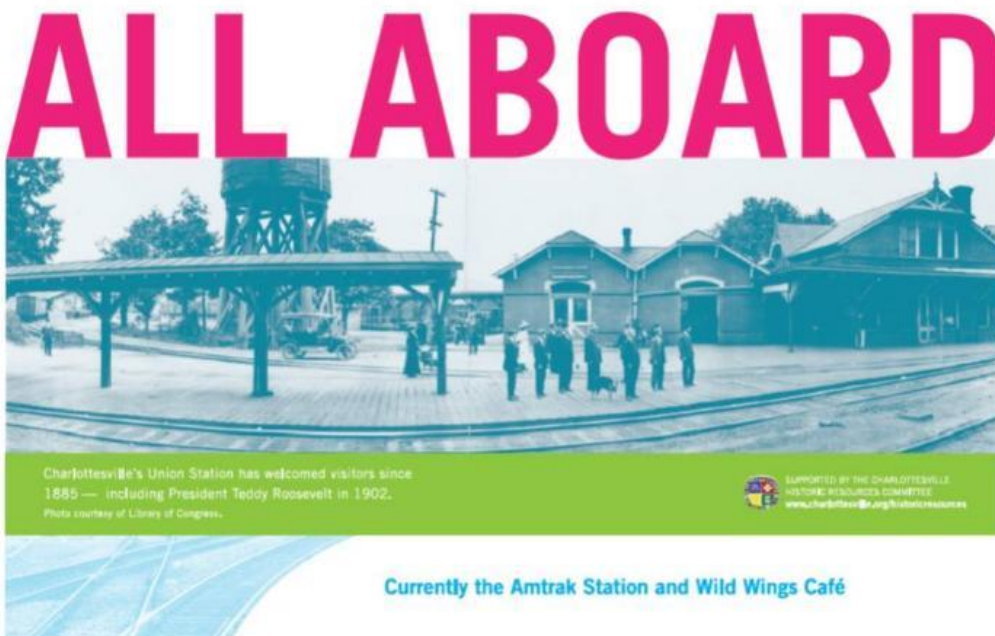

Fry's Spring Service Station operated between 1931 and 2009. The building is Colonial/Spanish Revival with Jeffersonian details. Photo courtesy of Melonie Miller.

SUPPORTED BY THE CHARLOTTESVILLE HISTORIC RESOURCES COMMITTEE
www.charlottesville.org/historicresources

Fry's Spring Service Station on Fontaine Avenue

Charlottesville's Union Station:

All Aboard! Charlottesville's Union Station has welcomed visitors since 1885 - including President Teddy Roosevelt in 1902.

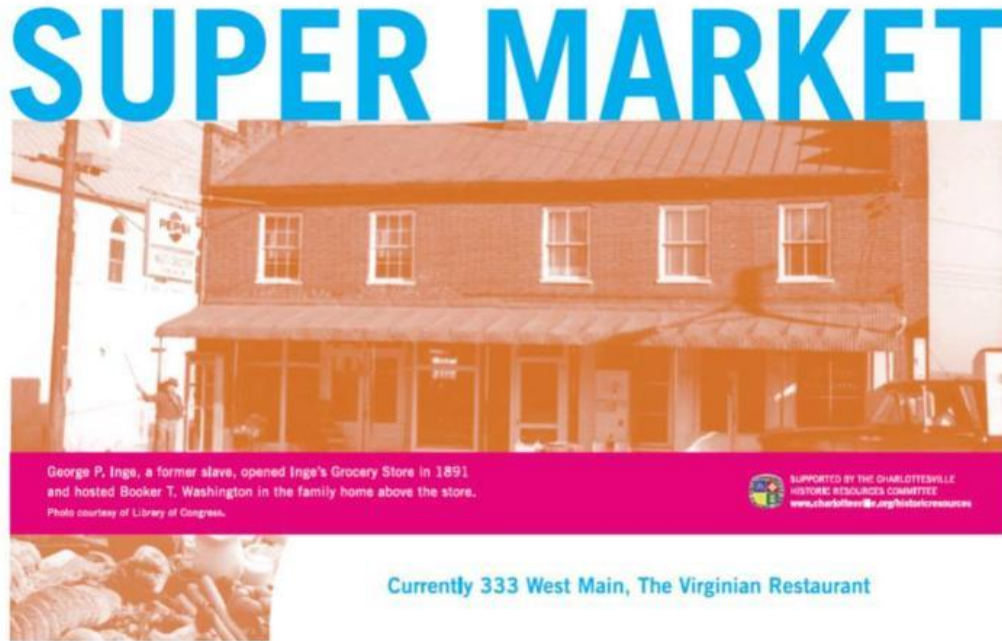

Charlottesville's Union Station has welcomed visitors since 1885 — including President Teddy Roosevelt in 1902. Photo courtesy of Library of Congress.

SUPPORTED BY THE CHARLOTTESVILLE HISTORIC RESOURCES COMMITTEE
www.charlottesville.org/historicresources

Currently the Amtrak Station and Wild Wings Café

Inge's Grocery Store:

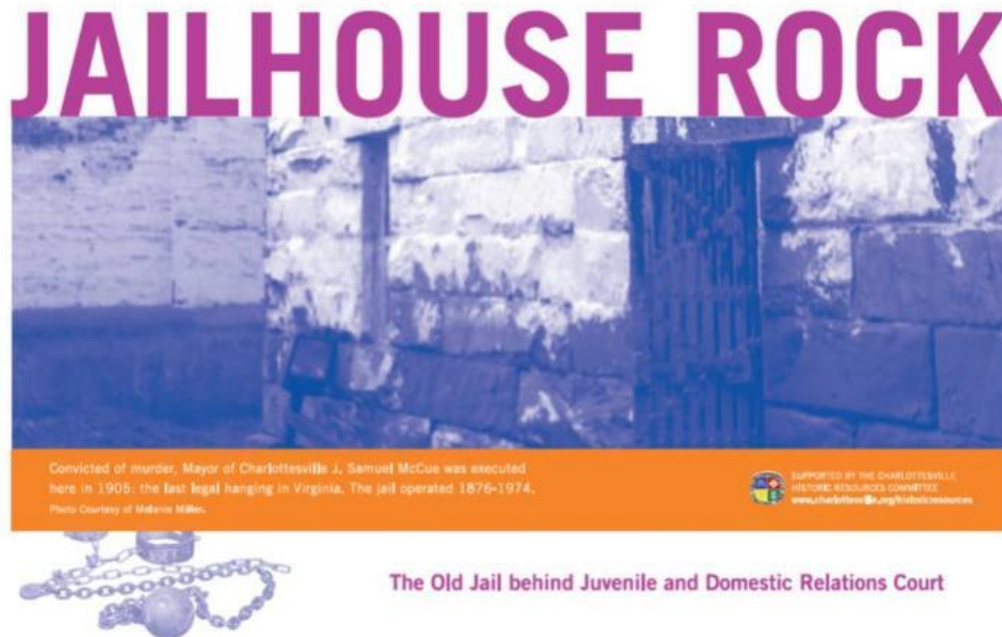

Super Market. George P. Inge, a former slave, opened Inge's Grocery Store in 1891 and hosted Booker T. Washington in the family home above the store.

Currently 333 West Main, The Virginian Restaurant

The Old Jail:

Jailhouse Rock. Convicted of murder, Mayor of Charlottesville J. Samuel McCue was executed here in 1905: the last legal hanging in Virginia. The jail operated from 1876-1974.

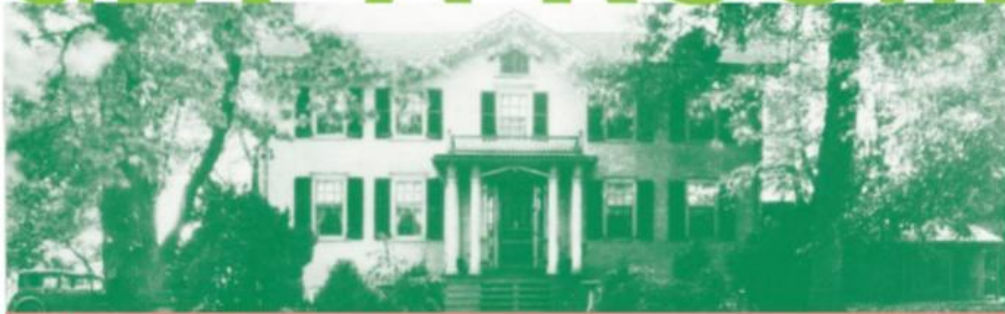

The Old Jail behind Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court

The Dolly Madison Inn:

Get a Room... Or a new car, or gas or lunch. West Main Street was once home to 3 hotels, 6 automobile dealers, 12 service stations, 10 grocery stores, and 3 miniature golf courses!

GET A ROOM

...for a new car, gas or lunch, West Main Street was once home to 3 hotels, 6 automobile dealers, 12 service stations, 10 grocery stores, and 3 miniature golf courses!
Photo: The Dolly Madison Inn, courtesy of Albemarle Charlottesville Historical Society

SUPPORTED BY THE CHARLOTTESVILLE HISTORIC RESOURCES COMMITTEE
www.charlottesville.org/historicresources

1204 West Main Street, future home of UVa Children's Hospital

Swan Tavern:

She's Shown. Shoshone guide, Sacajawea, was included in the statue of locals, Lewis and Clark. Given by Paul Goodloe McIntire, sculpted by Charles Keck in 1921.

JACK BE QUICK

Jack Jouett resided at his father's Swan Tavern. Jouett rode forty miles to warn Governor Thomas Jefferson and members of the General Assembly of the approach of the British. While his overnight ride allowed most to escape to Staunton, Daniel Boone and six other Assembly members were captured and detained for several days.
Photo: Swan Tavern by Bob Micala

SUPPORTED BY THE CHARLOTTESVILLE HISTORIC RESOURCES COMMITTEE
www.charlottesville.org/historicresources

Site of Swan Tavern, 359 Park Street, at East Jefferson Street.
Listen to the audio tour! www.audiotourville.com or 434-970-3450